Breonna Taylor graduated from Western High School and she will forever be a part of the JCPS family. Her legacy has helped spark a demand for change. What happened to her was a devastating tragedy for our community that can’t be ignored but the response must not include violence.

We can’t change the past but we can do our part to change and improve the future for thousands of JCPS students. What we do now in JCPS matters more than ever. Our district has even more resolve to ensure the tenets of our Racial Equity Plan are realized. We will keep working to bring racial equity to the forefront in JCPS for all of our students, their families and our educators.
